

GUIDE TO ASSISTING PEOPLE WITH NEEDS

This guide is a volunteer, nonprofit effort to help in assisting people with needs. It is not intended to be all inclusive and may contain errors. Aid is fluid and much of the information may become obsolete as time passes. We have drawn on endless sources to provide information. We thank each source for the information.

We urge you to contact any of the cited agencies to be sure your needs are served. Many agencies are nonprofit but we list some for-profits for information purposes.

We also recommend that you consult the exhaustive service referral under the auspices of the United Way. The center can be accessed by dialing 211 on your phone. It should be able to provide current, detailed information dealing with numerous needs. United Way has provided a needed public service.

To request additions or corrections to this guide, please email your information to fpcsheffield@comcast.net

Many good citizens, charities, government agencies and faith based organizations are striving to serve their fellow human beings. The purpose for this publication is to guide them to a launch point so they can move forward in a positive way.
